Though Heath couldn't kick a goal, he played a great game otherwise. He cored three of the touchdowns, one of which was a most sensational play. After receiving the ball in the middle of the field from a punt, he ran twisting and dodging through the whole Montpelier eleven for a touchdown. J. Berry also made three touchdowns. One of them came after an 80-yard run and another from a forward pass, for which he ran 40 yards. Goddard had the first touchdown in two minutes after the game started, having rushed the ball from the kickoff by M. S. nearly the whole length of the field, McDonald making a 30-yard run and J. The manager wired back; if the coal man's brother dies, you'll have a good house. We couldn't understand it, but the explanation came the next day in a letter from the manager, who wrote that the leading coal dealer of the town was to give a ball at the skating-rink on the same night that we were to play at the opera house. He had engaged a local orchestra of four pieces, and it was mani-festly impossible for musicians to be in two places at the same time. Our show would suffer if the ball was given for the public of Richmond was tired of hearing comic opera to piano accompaniment. But, wrote the manager, the coal dealer's brother is very sick, and if he dies the ball will be postponed, and you can get the orchestra. Two days later we arrived in Richmond, and as Mr. Dunlar and I walked up the street, we saw crepe on the door of the coal office.
